DEATH RECALLS ESCAPE IN 1908 FROM HANGING BEE.

Southerner, Whose Friend Was Hanged Escaped From Rope by Jumping in Lake.

Memphis, Tenn.—The famous night riding campaign of 1908 in Ohio, Lake and adjoining counties in West Tennessee, during which hundreds of citizens of that district banded together in opposition to a plan of Northern capitalists of making the Redfoot Lake area of Tennessee into a vast private game preserve, is recalled by the death at his home in Trenton, Tenn., Friday of Col. N. Z. Taylor, one of the central figures in the uprising.

In that year Col. Taylor and Capt. Quentin Rankin were taken from the hotel at Walnut, in the preserve, by the night riders. Capt. Rankin was hanged and a rope placed about Col. Taylor's neck. Although 62 years old, he broke away from his captors, dived into a lake and although dozens of shots were fired at him, made his escape in the swamps. Eight members of the night riding band received death sentences, but the case was reversed by the Supreme Court and the men were never tried again. The hanging of Capt. Rankin caused the plan for the game preserve to be abandoned, and the State since has taken over part of the tract.

Col. Taylor died near the spot in Trenton where he was born in 1846.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surface of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. J. J. CHERRY & CO., Toledo, O.

NOAH'S ARK STANDS SAYS SCIENTISTS.

Dr. Getzinger Recognized it in Great Egyptian Pyramid of Cheops

Los Angeles, Cal.—Noah's ark, built to save human and animal life from the flood of ancient Biblical times, is still extant for all to see, 36,000 years after its construction.

This is the belief of Dr. E. C. Getzinger, Egyptologist, now visiting here. His conclusion is based, he declares, on recent discoveries following 35 years of research work, some of the results of which he described in an address at Los Angeles.

Dr. Getzinger is convinced the ark of Noah was not a ship; that it was the great pyramid of Cheops in Egypt. Recent discoveries prove the pyramids—Noah's ark and the others—were under the sea for thousands of years. Near the top of each of the pyramids at the same level is a high water line, where a deep niche has been cut into the rock by the lashing of a long-forgotten surf—the surf of the flood which inundated the ancient Biblical world, he declared. Dr. Getzinger said research showed the inner passages of the pyramids to be thickly crusted with salt, which chemical analysis proved was sea salt.

He is convinced the pyramids were built thousands of years before the reign of the Pharaohs. The latter, to whom they have been accredited, merely repaired them and caused a leveling of stones to be built over them, he said.

And he is also convinced that the pyramids stand today a living monument to an old and noble philosophy, a civilization greater than any the human race has since attained.

Obviously, since modern science cannot account for the means used to transport and place the great stone slabs used in the construction of the pyramids, the ancient Egyptians must have possessed knowledge and power lost to us of the present day, Dr. Getzinger argued. His explanation of the feat performed by those ancient engineers is that they were of a race infinitely more spiritual than modern man; that their power lay in greater understanding of the universe and its laws.

For instance, Dr. Getzinger said, his researches indicate that those ancients, prior to 36,000 years ago, had no language, needed no language. They had the gift of transference of thought, a "higher" finer comprehension of what we call telepathy, and as language was born in to the world for the use of human beings, this spirituality was gradually lost to us.

"In this manner," Dr. Getzinger continued, "they understood the power of light to lessen the weight of mass objects—a fact which modern experiences are even now making evident."

PEMISCOT FARM BUREAU NEWS

FARM BUREAU PLAN DECENNIAL OBSERVANCE

Celebration Will be Held at Cape Girardeau August 10—J. R. Howard to Attend.

Announcement of final plans for the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the birth of the Farm Bureau in Missouri was made this week. The observance will be at Cape Girardeau on August 10 and J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will be the principal speaker.

The celebration will be under the auspices of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation and the Cape Girardeau County Farm Bureau. John L. Boland, president of the M. F. B. F., will preside. Other speakers will include S. D. Gromer, professor of Rural Economics at the Missouri College of Agriculture and advisor to the legislative committee of the M. F. B. F.

The M. F. B. F. champion horse-shoe pitchers will meet the champions of Illinois in the first interstate Farm Bureau "barnyard golf" tournament on record. There will be numbers of other games and contests of slightly lesser interest.

In the morning there will be a pageant parade that will depict the ten years of Farm Bureau history, and also in Cape Girardeau county, but also in Missouri and America.

A summer basket dinner picnic will be served at noon. Preparations are being made to care for several thousand Farm Bureau folks from outside Cape Girardeau county.

The South and Missouri Agricultural Bureau will furnish a tour over the district for visitors who want to see the district.

A number of farmers from this county will drive to Cape Girardeau for this celebration. Some will go prepared to camp out and spend a portion of the summer vacation in that way. Others will drive through and get lodging at Cape. Some of the farmers will no doubt make the trip over Southeast Missouri with the party from other sections of the State.

Special railroad rates have been made according to the receipt plan. If any of the citizens of Pemiscot county are interested in going by rail, they can get details of this plan by applying to the county agent.

The Farm Bureau, through this celebration, is saying to the farmers of Missouri and other States "Let's Go." That should be the slogan of at least fifty carloads of farmers in this county, and we trust that many will be present at Cape Girardeau.

All Set for the Farm Bureau Decennial.

How would you like to stand on the street corner and see a parade more than a mile in length pass by, showing all the efforts of the Farm Bureau and its workings for the past ten years? How would you like to hear the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, James R. Howard of Iowa, tell about the great work that farmers have done in the United States during the past few years? How would you like to be with all the County Agents in Missouri and get acquainted with them and see what enthusiastic workers of agriculture they are? How would you like to mingle with fifteen or twenty thousand farmers, all district farmers, who have come together to have a good time and enjoy a few days' vacation? How would you like to see an old-fashioned square dance, such as we used to see when we were boys and girls?

If you are interested in any of the above mentioned and if you are interested in getting better acquainted with the farmers and the general run of the farming conditions, you should be at Cape Girardeau on Thursday, August 10th. At that time the greatest farm celebration that Missouri has ever had will be held at that place.

Attention Farm Bureau Members.

The New Madrid County Farm Bureau will soon make an order for a carload of picric acid. The price will be eleven cents per pound f. o. b. New Madrid, Missouri, and the acid will be shipped from Fort Wingate, New Mexico. If any of the Farm Bureau members in Pemiscot county are interested in getting this explosive for stump blowing or ditching, will you please send your check to the Farm Bureau office at once.

MISSOURI NOT FREE FROM POISON PLANTS.

Many in State Which are Fatal to Cattle.

Jefferson City.—There are a great many poisonous plants in Missouri and the best bred cattle in herds—that is, the best eaters—are nearly always the ones to be affected by eating the poisonous plants, Dr. David Franklin Luckey, live stock commissioner of the St. Louis live stock market has found in his observations he declared in a statement recently given out.

Junco weed is a common example of a poisonous plant found in Missouri pastures, Dr. Luckey says. The seeds are poisonous, but they are seldom eaten, either the objectionable taste of the plant or the natural instinct of the animal keeping them from eating the plant except when pressed by hunger, he has found.

"I know of two cases of cattle being poisoned by young cockleburs, one case of horses being poisoned on a cotulla, or rattlebox in hay, and only a few cases of cattle poisoning on the wilted leaves of the wild cherry tree," Dr. Luckey explained. Wild cherry leaves are possibly the only exception to the rule that grazing cattle are not easily poisoned, he added.

"In many cases hogs die shortly after having access to a patch of cockleburs. The young hogs are up a violent inflammation of the digestive tract. Pigs are said to roll and squeal in pain. If eaten in sufficient quantities, the hogs are sure to produce death.

"The rattlesnake, a sort of a pea with a round black pod, found in some parts of Missouri, is a poisonous, producing a drowsiness with stretching and yawning. If consumed for too long a period the hogs eating it will go down eventually dying.

"When the bark of a green wild cherry tree blows off and the leaves wither, prunus acid develops. Cattle eat a bit or two and drop dead.

"Under certain conditions, sorghum, Indian corn, wild cow peas, common red clover and timothy and some stubble are very poisonous. When the growth of sorghum or corn is stunted by drought, prunus acid develops in the stalks. Stalks are always dangerous following a dry season. Sorghum often develops so much of this poison that a few bites will kill a cow. It loses this property after being cut and cured.

"Wild cowpeas grow voluntarily in a low black bottom in Southeast Missouri. Heavy rains during the growing season, sufficient to scald and stunt the growth of the vines, cause the development of prunus acid in the pea. I have one farm to lose 250 cattle in three weeks from eating this wild pea.

"Over-ripe red clover, during the wet season, is poisonous, either in the field or in the mow. It produces a cracking and soreness of the skin, especially on the thighs, udder, abdomen and mouth.

"Timothy and cut stubble, following a light shower after a very dry summer, will develop mold that is ruinous to sheep and lamb. The ears first swell and drop, then dry up. A sticky discharge gums up the eyes and nose. The membranes of the eye turn yellow. Death is the usual result. The damage done by useful farm crops when they do become poisonous is a thousandfold greater than that done by plants that are naturally poisonous."

FIRST BOLL OF OPEN COTTON.

The following is taken from the news columns of yesterday's Commercial Appeal:

"The Commercial Appeal is in receipt, through Dr. H. T. Byars of Caruthersville, Mo., of first open bolls from Missouri. Dr. Byars writes as follows:

"By this mail I am sending you four open bolls of Trice Variety, found yesterday, July 31, in a 400-acre cotton field grown by C. H. Cunningham of the Cunningham Land & Development Company of this city. This cotton was planted early in April and as far as the writer knows is about 14 days ahead of the record for open bolls here and only about 10 days behind this year's record for open cotton in Central Mississippi."
